Contents

PREFACE 11

1 THE BADEN HOME IN THE MIDDLE OF THE 19th CENTURY 15

2 THE ANCESTORS AND THE PARENTAL HOME 21
The Parental Home 24

3 CHILDHOOD, YOUTH, SCHOOLDAYS 29
Early childhood memories 30
School time 32
Fantasy games 37

4 "THE DECISION TO BECOME A PHYSIOLOGIST" – STUDY AND CAREER CHOICE 43
Motives of university studies 44
Studies in Heidelberg 46
Clinical residency and start of psychological career 52

5 "A QUIET TIME OF SUFFERING" – THE HEALTH CRISIS AND HOW TO OVERCOME IT 55
The habilitation 56
The lung disease 57
Assistant period with Helmholtz (1858-1863) 60
The friendships of the private lecturers 64

6 THE POLITICAL COMMITMENT 69
The motives 70
The workers' training association in Heidelberg 71
Seconded to the II. Chamber of Commerce 75
The national question 77
Withdrawal from politics 78

7 BASIC PRINCIPLE OF PHYSIOLOGICAL PSYCHOLOGY 83
The change to a psychologist 83
Lectures on the human and animal soul 83
The textbook 85

8 WUNDT AND HIS FAMILY 89
Marriage proposal and engagement 91
Move to Zurich 93
The call to Leipzig 94
Wundt and his wife 96
The children Eleonore, Max and Lili 97
Holiday travel 105
Retirement home in Heidelberg 107
End of life in Großbothen 109

9 THE LEIPZIG PERIOD – THE SEMINAR FOR EXPERIMENTAL PSYCHOLOGY 113
Appointment to Zurich 113
The call to Leipzig 115
The year of foundation 1879 119
Further development of the institute 121
Apparatus equipment 122
Working atmosphere in the Wundt Institute 126
The Department of International Psychology 129

10 WUNDT AND HIS STUDENTS: THE FRIENDSHIP WITH KRAEPELIN 131
The first american student 131
First contacts 136
The intrigue 137
Kraepelin's Wundt picture 139
Scientific studies 142
The life friendship 143

11 WILHELM WUNDT – FACETS OF A PERSONALITY 147
Wundt as a lonely child 148
Wundt as private lecturer 148
Wundt as a politician 150
Wundt as husband and as family father 151
Wundt as a scientist 153
Wundt and his descendants 156

Bibliography 159

Source directory 163

Picture credits 164