Contents

Preface VII

Contributors IX

Part One: Introduction

1.1 Health Communication, Health Promotion and Health Communication Campaigns 3
Angela Schorr

Part Two: Media Exposure and Health Campaign Effects – Psychological and Methodological Analyses

2.1 The Utility of Affect-Evoking Exemplars in Health Promotion 23
Dolf Zillmann

2.2 The Methodological Problem of Media Exposure in Health Communication Research 61
Michael D. Slater

Part Three: Health Communication and Health Promotion Strategies from a Lifespan Perspective

3.1 Health Communication Strategies for Older Adults 87
Donna Lloyd-Kolkin

3.2 Antismoking Messages Targeting Youth: How Do College Students Process Gain- and Loss-Framed Information? 107
I-Huei Cheng & Melissa J. Poole

Part Four: Campaigning for Health – Case Studies

4.1 Stair Prompts: An Empirical Case Study of Mediated Communication 133
Jacqueline Kerr, Frank Eves & Doug Carroll

4.2 Generating Anti-Smoking News: Correspondences between a Health Organisation's Press Releases and Free Publicity 153
Luuk Lagerwerf, Erik Taal & Patricia Brouwer

4.3 Portrayal of Eating Disorders in the Press with Special Regard to its Adequacy 183
Eva Baumann, Lars Harden & Helmut Scherer

4.4 Identifying Key Factors for the Successful Implementation of Health Communication Campaigns – A Study Based on In-Depth Interviews with Key Campaigners 209
Parichart Sthapitanonda & Kitti Gunpai